

SUIT AGAINST LEE CO. OVER BRIDGE BILL LOOMS

Great Extension of I. N. U. Lines Possible

INVASION OF WINNEBAGO IS SEEN IN MOVE

Rockford Sees Insult Interests Acquiring Railroads

Rockford — Actual invasion of Winnebago county by the Samuel Insull electric power empire within the near future was forecast here by a series of developments, the most important of which was the filing of an application at Springfield by the Illinois Northern Utilities Co., this week for a certificate of convenience and necessity for the operation of a high power electric transmission line from Dixon to Belvidere.

The new line, it was intimated, may be built by the Illinois Northern Utilities an Insull-controlled company from Dixon to Belvidere by way of Freeport and Rockford.

Insult Visits Belvidere. The filing of the petition for the Dixon-Belvidere power line comes immediately on the heels of a flying visit to Belvidere by Samuel Insull, from his Chicago office for a conference with Belvidere bankers and capitalists.

While in Belvidere Mr. Insull is said to have evinced great interest in the Elgin and Belvidere interurban lines which are now owned by Elgin J. Arnold, Chicago multi-millionaire. Recently the Insull interests acquired the third rail interurban line between Elgin and Chicago which was owned by the Aurora, Elgin and Chicago electric road.

The interurban lines between Belvidere and Elgin and the lines of the Rockford & Interurban Railway Co. from Freeport to Belvidere form natural connecting links for a continuous fast speed interurban line from Chicago west to the Mississippi river.

Abandonment of the interurban lines of the Rockford & Interurban Co. has been seriously considered since the operation of the interurban and traction lines have been taken over by a receiver. That Insull will not allow the opportunity of acquiring the interurban lines at least between Freeport and Belvidere if they are put up for sale, to pass, seems reasonably certain.

May Hookup Power Lines. Possibility of a hookup of interurban and electric power lines in this section by the Insull interests into a large unified electric system is being regarded in towns between Rockford and Chicago as an ultimate certainty.

As the Illinois Northern Utilities Co. already operates a big transmission line from Dixon to Freeport, a hookup by way of Freeport and Rockford from Dixon, it is intimated, would be brought with less difficulties than under the rerouting plan.

Controls Heloit. Insull, besides supplying Belvidere with power, has also acquired control of the power situation in Beloit where the first unit of a 35,000 horse power electric power plant is already being installed.

The hooking up of Dixon, Belvidere, Freeport and Rockford in the light of these various developments in an interurban and power system is regarded by northern Illinois bankers and utility men as more than a possibility but an actual objective toward which the first steps have already been taken by the Insull interests.

DIXON IS GIVEN PUBLICITY THRU FARM TESTING

State Field West of City Draws Comment Throughout State

Dixon is getting widespread publicity through the soil experimental field west of the city.

Results from this field along with others from this part of the state showing the value of manure were reported during the past season by A. L. Lang of this city and have since been given wide publicity in farm journals and local newspapers throughout the state.

This twenty-acre field, located two and one-half miles west of Dixon on the Lincoln Highway, which is owned and operated by the University of Illinois should be of great value and interest to Dixon and community.

Mr. Lang the University representative in charge of the different fields in Northern Illinois reports that one can gain a liberal education in farming by watching the operation of this field and by carefully studying the results of the past fifteen years.

The field is fully equipped with modern and up-to-date machinery. The best known methods of cultivation are practiced on the field at all times. During the growing season crops can be seen on twenty different systems of soil management, showing interesting valuable and contrasting growths.

Frank Buskley, a graduate of the Western School of Embalming, has returned to his home in Dixon, having completed his course.

MAN WHO SPEAKS HERE TONIGHT IS HIGHLY COMMENDED

Public Invited to Free Lecture at Family Theater Tonight

The free public lecture on "What America Needs Today," by Peter W. Collins of Boston, under the auspices of the Dixon Council of the Knights of Columbus at the Family Theater at 8:15 o'clock tonight promises to be one of the most interesting discourses heard in this city for some time, judging by the press reports of the lecturer's work.

Speaking of Mr. Collins' lecture in San Francisco, the Monitor said: "Mr. Collins shines as a brilliant thinker. He listens patiently and kindly to every questioner, even when he is heckled, repeats the question so that those who have ears may hear, and then puts his refutation in short and perfect form. The Knights of Columbus are to be congratulated on having selected such an able champion of sound economics and religious liberty to present the cause of Christian Democracy to the American people and it is to be strongly hoped give thousands more an opportunity that Mr. Collins will return soon and of hearing this gifted and gracious Christian athlete."

Town Talk, Alexandria, La., said of him: "It would have been well if every man, woman and child in Alexandria could have heard Mr. Peter Collins, Monday night. We are not a Catholic or a Knight of Columbus, but we thoroughly enjoyed listening to him because his lecture was so free from any appeal to prejudice and class hatred and he was so liberal and broad-minded in expressing his own convictions. He made a most earnest plea for a just tolerance for the religious convictions of our fellowmen; that we owed it to the Fatherhood of a just God to admit the universal brotherhood of man, and when once the human race gets this idea firmly implanted in its heart, preaching and practicing with this idea uppermost in the minds of all men, many of the evils which now confront us will disappear."

The Tidings, Los Angeles, Cal.: "The lecture given by Peter W. Collins was a rare treat. Mr. Collins' presentation and handling of his theme left nothing to be desired while his genuine Christian spirit and sound logic made him a master of his subject. Taking the lecture all in all, it joyed here for a long time, and Mr. Collins is assured of a large and sympathetic audience whenever he shall appear again on a lecture platform in Los Angeles."

Conversations over a two party telephone between Mrs. Bowers and Archer, who is alleged to have confessed to purchase of the poison to be administered to Bowers, were related today to the district attorney by two women who reported the alleged plot.

He issued a written statement denying that Col. Williams had been arrested while General Butler was a guest in the officer's home. Whatever happened in his home had nothing to do with the case, the statement said.

It explained that "the unfortunate incidents which caused my action took place in a public hotel when I was not a guest of this officer."

At San Diego, where General Butler filed his charges of intoxication against Col. Williams, efforts were made by the accused officer's friends to assemble evidence to combat the charges.

Should the Colonel be court-martialed, the maximum sentence that could be imposed, it was stated, would be expulsion from the service.

MURDERESS CONFESSES TO TWO OTHER MURDERS BY POISON AND AN ATTEMPT

Admits Former Crimes on Eve of Departure to State Prison

Flora, Ill., March 12.—(AP)—Mrs. Elsie Bible Marinsky, 44, under life sentence for the poison murder of the former wife of her third husband, has substantially admitted having committed two other poison murders, and a fourth attempted poisoning, State's Attorney Williams announced last night.

Her other victims, the state's attorney told the Associated Press, were a husband and the former wife of a former husband.

The information made public by Williams which, he said, is practically the substance of her confession, is that about 15 years ago she poisoned and killed the wife of Havill Bible in order that she might marry him, and that about three years ago she fatally poisoned Bible when she became dissatisfied with him as her husband.

Her first husband, Wilbur Cope, divorced her about 18 years ago after, it was alleged, she had made an unsuccessful attempt to poison him, the state's attorney said.

Later she was convicted of living in adultery with Bible and, according to Williams and her alleged confession, she poisoned Bible's first wife and then married him. His death occurred in December, 1923, but was not in evidence at the time.

The woman became housekeeper for E. L. Malinsky, her present husband, and gave poison to his wife causing her death last September 26. She then married Malinsky and her arrest recently followed exhuming of the body of the first Mrs. Malinsky and a chemical examination of the viscera. Malinsky is held in the murder of his first wife, but the poison murderess has absolved him of blame. No new charges are to be filed against her.

All tax notices will have been mailed out this afternoon, the last few having been placed in the postoffice late today. ### PROMISE OF SUIT COMES FROM BESSE

Lee Board Adjourns Without Paying Back Fees of Deputies

Whiteside County To Sue Lee County for Money on Bridge

States Attorney Besse of Whiteside county declared Thursday morning that suit will be filed against Lee county to force the payment of one half of the cost of a bridge constructed over Holland creek near the Whiteside-Lee county line.

At a session of the Lee county board of supervisors, the road and bridge committee held that they were not legally responsible for the amount of $442.42 which had been asked of them as part payment.

The board as a whole then voted to refuse to assume any portion of the expense.

The closing session of the Lee county board of supervisors found the fees and salaries committee occupying the center of the stage and still battling with the vital subject, deputy sheriff's bills. While these members of the county's official family have received no compensation since last September, the findings of the fees and salaries committee leaves a period of several months until some plan can be decided upon.

The committee is planning to prevent paying the deputies some other items slipped through when the report was read and considerable time was occupied in disposing of their report, the last to be submitted to the open board in the four day session.

A bill for $3 for postage for the sheriff's office brought about a discussion among some of the committee members. The bill was read as being allowed and immediately Supervisor Straw, spokesman for the committee, took exception to the bill, stating that it was not the intention of the committee to pay the bill, that it was to come out of the incidental expenses of the office.

"The other offices of the county receive pay for postage," Supervisor Roy Gooch of the committee, who was checking the bills replied, and the bill went on record as being paid.

Taxi Bill Contested

The bill of F. H. Dishong of Amboy for taxi hire in bringing four prisoners to the Lee county jail was the next matter over which a lengthy parley was held. The sum involved was $14 and the committee had reported disallowing the claim. Supervisor Gilbert P. Finch of Amboy addressed the chair to explain the claim. He stated that in each of the instances, emergencies arose in which prisoners were to be taken to the county jail from the vicinity of Amboy, one of these being at a time when the city jail at Amboy was quarantined for small pox and prisoners could not be housed.

"The bill has not been O. K'd" replied Supervisor Straw, who explained that for this reason it had been disallowed by the committee.

Supervisor Roy Gooch offered a motion that the bill be allowed and Supervisor Bauer took the occasion to notify the Lee County representative that he was out of order, and suggested that the claim be turned back to the committee for further consideration.

The bill belongs to the claims committee," the Palmyra member of the committee replied.

Supervisor Finch told the board that he personally knew that the bill for the transporting of prisoners from the vicinity of Amboy to the county jail at Dixon was correct and volunteered to make the necessary O. K. which action was accepted by the committee and the amount allowed.

New Bills Disallowed

As the clerk read the bills of the deputies in the sheriff's office for services performed since the December meeting, each was disallowed by the committee.

A somewhat incomplete resolution was read to the board from the fees and salaries committee in which they recommended the expenditure of $2,000 from the fees collected by the sheriff annually for special deputy hire. The question arose as to whether the amount was to be spent per annum or until the term of office of Sheriff E. C. Risley expires next December. The report was decided to be incomplete and a recess of 30 minutes was taken to permit the committee to complete its report.

THE SNOW-SHOWER—
Stand here by my side and turn, I pray.

On the lake below thy gentle eyes;
The clouds hang over it, heavy and gray.

And dark and silent the water lies;
And out of that frozen mist the snow
In wavering flakes begins to flow;

Flake after flake
They sink in the dark and silent lake.

See how in a living swarm they come
From the chambers beyond that misty veil;
Some hover awhile in air, and some
Rush prone from the sky like summer hail.

All dropping swiftly or settling slow,
Meet, and are still in the depths below;

Flake after flake
Dissolved in the dark and silent lake...

Yet look again, for the clouds divide;
A gleam of blue on the water lies;
And far away, on the mountain-side,
A sunbeam falls from the opening skies.

But the hurrying host that flew between
The cloud and the water, no more is seen;

Flake after flake,
At rest in the dark and silent lake.

Honored Comrade Hall's Birthday

Members of the Grand Army and of the Amboy Relief Corps No. 138 and their families, spent a very pleasant day at the Relief Corps hall, March 9th. The occasion was in honor of Jos. Hall's 83rd birthday anniversary. A chicken dinner was served by the ladies at noon. The centerpiece for one of the tables was a very beautiful plant, the gift of the Amboy Corps. On the other table was two large cakes. The birthday cake was made by the president of the W. R. C., Mrs. Daisy Meyer. It was a large white cake with 83 pink roses and candles thereon and was most attractive, when the candles were lighted. The other cake was made by Mr. Hall's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Joe Hall, Jr. It was a most beautiful large white cake with Mr. Hall's name and age in pink. There were sixty-five present at the enjoyable affair. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Thompson and son, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Acker, Joe Hall Jr. and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Tyrrell, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Burnham, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Tuttle and daughter Ellen, and Mrs. John Haas.

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY.

Breakfast—
Baked apples, cereal cooked with raisins, thin cereal, waffles, sirup, milk, coffee, crisp toast for juniors.

Luncheon—
Toad in the hole, creamed potatoes, graham bread, Sally Lunn, canned cherries, milk, tea.

Dinner—
Stuffed pork tenderloins, baked Irish potatoes, candied sweet potatoes, apple-celery nut salad, bran rolls, orange cream, milk, coffee.

The toad in the hole is planned especially to use any left-overs from the previous dinner, but any kind of meat is quite suitable.

Juniors under school age will not indulge in the waffles for breakfast.

Toad in the Hole.
One cup flour, 1 cup milk, 1 egg, 1 cup diced lamb, salt and pepper.

The amount of salt depends on how well the meat was seasoned when first cooked. One-half teaspoon will be needed to season the milk and flour.

Mix flour, salt and pepper. Beat egg. Make a little well in the flour and pour in the egg. Gradually stir the egg into the flour. Slowly add half the milk. Beat batter until smooth and add the rest of the milk. Put meat in a shallow baking dish, pour over batter and bake 45 minutes in a hot oven.

Sally Lunn.
Two cups flour, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 egg, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup milk, 1/4 teaspoon salt.

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Slowly beat in milk. Add egg, well beaten. Beat in melted butter. Beat batter for five minutes. Turn into buttered and floured muffin pans and bake in a quick oven.

Orange Cream.
Two oranges, 2 cups milk, 2 eggs, 1/2 teaspoon cornstarch, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons orange juice, 2 teaspoons grated orange rind, 4 tablespoons powdered sugar.

Wash oranges and grate rind. Peel and cut fruit in thin slices. Sprinkle with two tablespoons granulated sugar. Separate whites and yolks of eggs. Scald milk. Beat sugar and salt in yolks and slowly stir in milk. Dilute cornstarch with a little cold water and stir into mixture. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until mixture coats the spoon. Remove from heat and add grated rind and juice of orange. Pour custard over oranges and let stand until well chilled. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and dry with two tablespoons cold water. Fold in powdered sugar and spread over custard. Put into a hot oven for eight minutes to cook and color the meringue. Cool and serve.

BY CYNTHIA GREY—
HUSBANDS — WIVES.
I LIKE — I DISLIKE.

I DON'T LIKE MRS. BURNS.
I am ashamed of myself sometimes for not liking her. She is so sweet—so all that the story writers say a wife should be—perhaps it's this too-sweetness that I don't like.

She's not a bride-wife. She's been married to her man 'most 20 years.

He's at that dangerous age—galloping out after one last romantic kick before he admits that he's too old for such tricks—

And instead of taking it like a good sport, accepting it as something fairly normal, fairly bound to happen, and fairly sure to blow over, and proceeding to live a fairly abundant life of her own, Mrs. Burns has turned stager—is playing the role the story writers expect her to play—

And as a result I'm afraid the episode may not be so normal as it might have been, and Mr. Burns may not recover so fast and so surely.

Lavender and Old Lace.
Mrs. Burns has grown lavender and old lace. She's only about 45, but one knows that she just yearns for a cap with lavender ribbons and a trunk full of old lace.

She wallows around in memories of their romantic past telling everyone about it—

They were married one spring years ago, she tells you, when the apple blossoms were no pinker than her cheeks nor the meadow violets bluer than her eyes—

They were married in the little white church where first they met, and their wedding anthem was sung by the robins and blue birds in the yellow sunshine outside—

They buy their little home on the sound rocks of trust and love and understanding—

Children came to them. Death came to them. They clung together—

"And" today I am just a little old woman—not in years but in mind and body. My children sapped my life. I gave and never took.

"He, out in the busy world of affairs has stayed brown of hair, quick of step, and keen-minded.

"His work has brushed him against men and women who are thinking modernly, doing modern, but my kitchen kept me with only pots and pans and potatoes."

The Other Woman.
Then, the tale goes on, came "the other woman." A younger woman. A woman not "drained of her life's very spirit" by children and house and all the leaden weights of the average wife and mother's life.

"The other woman's" mind is crisp and keen. When he is with her, men envy him and women envy her.

"And here am I, just a little old woman that nobody wants, made old before her time—made old through loving and serving—

"Well, I have his letters—those dear, dead letters from the long ago."

And there she sits with the bundle of old love letters in her lap, pouring out her heart to all and sundry, sniffing and mumbling "thank you's" for the words of consolation proffered her!

Well, she won't get any said words from my ruby lips. She doesn't need 'em. She's having altogether too good a time. I bet she's getting more fun out of Mr. Burns' autumnal philanderings than that Lethario is getting himself!

—And honestly now—can you expect even an autumnal philanderer to come back to that?

No woman with the right sort of mind is "bound by pots and pans and potatoes." I dare say, loudly, that women buried and snowed under by the things of domesticity are women who want nothing else more!

They Do Say!
Being a mama is not such a hardship in dear old England. A new pension law over there gives every widow with at least one child a pension of 10 shillings a week.

Another girl's college opens its portals to Lady Nicotine. Now it's Vascel which follows the shining example of Bryn Mawr and provides two smoking places on the college campus. The student assembly did it. But it remarked that "it is still the desire of the student body that you do not exercise your liberty to smoke, although we recognize that it is your right if you wish."

We opine that girls in colleges are really learning something these days when tolerance succeeds intolerance, and when individual points of view about individual things are conceded as due and fitting.

Now they tell us that the recently born bread trust of Wall Street "has a soul" and that food monopolies really save the housewife money rather than "bleed her white." Maybe—and then again, so's your old man!

Your Home.
If you live in "a sardine box" apartment, try these stunts on your cubic space. Nail a shoe rack on the closet door close to the floor. Install a clothes rod the full length of the closet. A low cedar chest may be put on wheels and rolled under the bed. And in-a-door beds and convertible library or dining-room tables, to say nothing of built-in dressing tables, china closets and book cases are "being used by our best families."

Kingdom-Mt. Union Aid Society Met
The Kingdom-Mt. Union Aid Society met with Mrs. Ed Stanley on the Trusdell road Wednesday. There were about thirty members present and several visitors. All enjoyed the wonderful dinner served at noon.

The meeting was opened by all singing "Blessed Assurance," followed by a verse from the Bible. Roll call and minutes of the last meeting were read. The meeting was then turned over to the program committee. Readings were given by the following: Inez Brink, Mrs. Ed Stanley, Mrs. Klapprodt, Alice Brink, Mrs. Brink, Miss Grimes and Mrs. Johnson. All were much enjoyed. The meeting was then closed by a song and the repetition of the Lord's Prayer.

The program committee for the next meeting is to be composed of Mrs. Birtell, chairman; Mrs. Patterson and Mrs. Grobe.

Then all departed thanking Mrs. Stanley for a good time, and will meet in two weeks with Mrs. D. L. Heagy.

Chance to Win $150 Scholarship
It is the custom of the Woman's Relief Corps of Illinois, Auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, each year to offer a scholarship to any boy or girl graduating from High School in Illinois for the class of 1926. The subject selected is "Americanization and its Benefits to Our Immigrants."

The prize, a $150.00 scholarship which the winner can use in any college or university in Illinois, approved by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. Neatness, correct spelling and a clear statement of facts will be taken into consideration when judging.

The length of the essay shall not be over 1,000 words nor less than 500 and written on one side of the paper. A statement should accompany each essay certifying to the good character of the pupil and that the essay is original.

Essays must be in the hands of the President of Dixon Corps, Mrs. Eva Richardson, 515 E. Chamberlain St. not later than March 29th.

This matter has been brought to the attention of Mr. Potter, principal of the High Schools and it is hoped that the Dixon pupils will compete. Last year Dixon was represented, but lost with one prize. Let's bring it to Dixon this year.

I ARGUE WITH MRS. AUSTIN—
My Dear Mrs. Austin, though we never have met, I'll take your advice and try not to fret. Sure we do have to have winter, I'm glad that we do, for I like ice and snow, believe me, that's true. I sure love to skate, and to see the snow fall, but somehow I just hate to hear the wind call. Because it sounds so lonesome and bad, as it whips 'round the corners, just like if it's mad. An' I can't help but think of poor souls in the street, who lack warm clothing, an' enough food to eat. So I'm anxious for good warm days to come, for those who haven't a comfortable home.

I'm sure the Weather Man does get provoked, I do hope he knows it was only a joke. Course we have to have March, an' I'm glad of his roar, I hope he keeps up his howl, more an' more, for if he was gentle an' mild don't you see, an' then would turn cold, (what calamity!) The buds would all freeze, our fruit would be gone, if he ended in snow, an' winds cold an' strong.

So here's to March, the month so tough.
That howls and treats a feller rough.
Still we'll keep smilin' every day
A thinkin' of the comin' May.

PUBLIC INVITED TO VOLLEY BALL GAME THIS EVE

Clinton Team to Meet Dixon on Local Y. M. C. A. Floor

Tonight on the Y. M. C. A. floor the Dixon volley ball team will meet a visiting team from Clinton, Iowa.

This game was scheduled some time ago and has been looked forward to by the local team with much pleasure.

Dixon will put on the floor tonight the very best team that can be lined up from the rank and file of the regular players in the Y. volley ball classes.

Efforts in the past month and a half to develop a real team appear to have been fruitful. What the team will do against outside competition remains to be seen. This is the first opportunity the team has had against outsiders since they lost three straight games at Sterling.

Spectators are welcome at these match games. There is no admission charged. Those who have never witnessed a real match game of volley ball will be surprised at the science and skill which enters into the game. It is not the tame sport that many believe it to be. Every game brings out some real thrills and interesting complications.

Tonight's game will get started at 8.00. Come out. Boost for Dixon.

Basket Shooting Contest at Y Saturday Afternoon
Much interest is being shown in the goal shooting contest to be held at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday afternoon.

Last week's contest was for free throws only and only those boys who were attending grade school could enter. The contest this week will be open to any boy between the ages of 10 and 17 who is a member of the Y.

Instead of a free throw contest this test will be what is known as the long and short shot contest.

Every boy who enters will be allowed fifty long shots and as many short shots as he is able to recover and make following each long shot. Following the long shot the ball must be recovered before it has bounced twice. If recovered before the first bounce the player is allowed one dribble. There is a possibility of 150 points. The boy scoring the highest number of points out of his fifty starts will be declared the winner.

RADIO—IF WORLD REVOLTS!

The world revolution of the proletariat will come, says Leon Trotsky of Russia, when the workers of France seize the Eiffel Tower radio station and broadcast the clarion of revolt to all corners of the earth.

Trotsky made this declaration to emphasize to his communist listeners the importance of radio to the life of the soviet.

His speech opens up an interesting avenue of speculation. The possibilities suggested are boundless. What might not one accomplish if one could find one certain doctrine, nightly, into the ears of millions of people?

Well, to be sure, the people could turn off their receiving sets and go to the movies. But there is no denying that in radio we have a power for propaganda ten times as strong as anything that has existed heretofore.

Do you remember the war days, when President Wilson sent the message of democracy and freedom ringing 'round the world, swung millions of hearts to the allied cause and broke down the resistance of the German masses?

Pamphlets, by the thousand, were taken over the enemy lines by airplanes and dropped for peasants and workers and soldiers to read. Speakers shouted the message, almost literally from the house tops. Magazines and newspapers took up the word. By the end of 1918 the entire world was persuaded where justice and truth lay.

The job was magnificently done. But think how it could have been done if radio, as we know it now, had been available. Think what can be done some day in the future, when some new message is to be sent crying out to the waiting world!

Will the soviet, the communists, be the first to do it? Will they bring about their much talked of "world revolution" with radio as their main weapon? Probably not. And yet—

See to it that they do not get the chance. See to it that the right to free speech, both over the radio and on the street corner, is kept inviolate. See to it that injustice is done away with, intolerance is made less intolerant and poverty is alleviated. Steer clear of censors and bureaucrats.

By so doing we shall spike their guns.

We needn't fear bolsheviks, or any other kind of radical, if we don't give them grounds for complaint. If we conduct ourselves as we should, with wisdom and a passion for freedom, all the bearded Russians in the world may shout themselves hoarse into the Eiffel Tower microphones—they will go unheeded.

LEE COUNTY'S TURN.

For the first time in sixteen years Lee County has a candidate for the state senate. According to the rule of rotation which has been practiced in this district for many years, Lee County is now entitled to have the Senator. And there are many other reasons why Major A. T. Tourtillot, Lee County's candidate should be sent to the state senate to represent this district rather than Harry G. Wright, of DeKalb, the present incumbent.

Lee County Republicans will give Major Tourtillot a loyal support. It is believed that the other two counties in the thirty-fifth district, DeKalb and Whiteside, will recognize Lee County's right to have a term or so in the senate. Major Tourtillot has already demonstrated his ability to be a benefit to the district. For the welfare of the district we hope he will be nominated.

BEAUTY CONTESTS.

A young lady who represented a certain eastern city in one of the recent bathing beauty contests has sued for divorce. Her husband relies that she "has never been the same" since she won the contest.

The chief objection to bathing beauty contests, like the objection to over-emphasis on college football, lies not in the effect on the spectators but the effect on those who take part.

How anyone could expect a young, immature girl to remain level-headed and poised after going through a big bathing beauty contest is a mystery.

Six candidates for sheriff will get the vote out.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

GRUBBY GROUNDHOG FOLLOWS HIS NOSE

"Come along, old man," he said firmly.

Nancy and Nick and the March Hare stood beside Grubby Groundhog's bed in Grubby's underground house, and watched him as he slept.

What did he care about the Land-Where-Spring-Was-Coming! He was having a grand time where he was.

Outside the snow was just about gone, there was only a little handfuf here and there sticking in around fence-corners and stones, the sky was blue and the air was really as warm as pie.

Nancy and Nick and the March Hare were laughing. For Grubby was acting so funny in his sleep.

"I'll tell you now why he was acting so funny."

Because the March Hare had cut a big red apple in two and laid the pieces right under Grubby's nose.

Now groundhogs like apples about as well as you like chocolate ice-cream soda, or a sail-boat sundae, or custard pie.

So it's no wonder Grubby's poor nose was wriggling itself off nearly.

He was dreaming.

He was dreaming that it was summer and he was stuffing his sides out with sweet apples in a sweet apple orchard.

"There's a fine one!" he would mutter in his sleep. "That big apple over there by the old grindstone. See! It just fell off the tree and never got bruised a bit and there aren't any ants on it. Not that I'd mind an ant or two. Some of them are mighty sweet."

Then Grubby snored twice and turned over.

"Say, where's that nice big sweet apple?" he muttered. "It's gone. It was over by that old grindstone and now I can't even so much as smell it."

The March Hare took one of the big pieces of apple he had cut and held it under Grubby's nose. "Come along, old man," he said firmly. "Come along. We'll find it."

Grubby threw back the covers and got slowly out of bed. Then all he did, my dears, was to follow his nose, and watched him as he slept.

"Oh, look!" giggled Nancy. "He's still asleep."

"Yes," said Nick. "He thinks he's still in the orchard smelling that big sweet apple."

"Come right along, Grubby," said the March Hare, wagging one ear at the Twins, which is the way rabbits wink at you sometimes. "Come right along, Mister Groundhog."

Then he took a step and Grubby took a step, then he took another step and Grubby took another step.

The March Hare always carefully holding the piece of apple just far enough from Grubby's nose for him to smell it.

They went along the crooked hall and out of the front door by the potato patch, the Twins quietly following, and then they came to the little secret bush that is the beginning of Scrub-Up Land. That magic place, ruled by Mister Rubadub, where all the meadow folk have to get groomed up so they'll look decent for spring.

Before Grubby so much as opened his eyes, they were right in Rubadub's house.

And the very first person Grubby saw was that fairyman with a towel over his arm and a big pair of scissors in his hand.

Grubby tried to bolt, but he was too slow.

They washed him up and trimmed his whiskers and slicked up his tail and combed him and brushed him and I think they put a few drops of brilliantine on him. But it was of no use. Grubby just wouldn't shine. But he looked better when at last he waddled off to the Land-Where-Spring-Was-Coming. Oh yes! I forgot! He got the apple after all and so he wasn't mad a bit.

Her Own Way.

A STORY OF A GIRL OF TODAY

A GOOD BLUFF

"I turned toward the door of Mr. Stern's office, when he called me back.

"Here, I didn't say for you to go immediately," he shouted.

"Well that's the way we're going," I answered composedly.

"At that he came off his high horse, for he knew I was the best bait checker in town and had more friends than any other girl in such a position. He also knew you are the prettiest girl he had ever met at his place. We both meant money to him and he wasn't going to let us go.

"Oh, Mamie, be yourself. Go back and take care of your little forlorn chicken if you want to, but remember that the first complaint I hear of either of you, out the 'firm' goes."

After that things went along fairly smoothly. Mamie acted as a buffer to me at the restaurant and I helped her out when her mother's complaints nearly drove her wild at home. I grew in time to be what Chuck would have called "hard-boiled." The tinsel clink of silly compliments meant nothing to me and I was able to either ignore or turn aside with an irrelevant remark the too obvious flatteries of the masquerade.

It was impossible, however, to act as all times as though I did not understand the advances of Herion, Stern's friend, and I would not let Mamie interfere as she wanted to when others of our patrons' speeches and actions were too obnoxious. I could not let her lose her job even if I did mine.

I kept congratulating myself that I had never seen anyone in the restaurant who had known me before coming here, for although I was making considerable money with my wagers and tips, I knew I was going to leave the place as soon as possible.

Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Bible reading and meditation prepared for Commission of Evangelism of Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

Read Jn. 13:1-16. Text: 13:14.

If I then, the Lord and the Teacher, have washed your feet, ye also ought to wash one another's feet.

Meditation—The uniqueness of his person and the greatness of his mission did not deter him from menial service. At all costs love needs to supply another's real need. No fear to lose prestige hampered his impulse to help. "I serve" is a princely motto. Jesus ideal centered in inward worth rather than in outward dignity. The example of the towel-girded Christ, if accepted by the youth of this decade, will make of them the happy and capable citizens of the next.

"A poor man served by thee shall make thee rich; A sick man helped by thee shall make thee strong;

Thou shalt be served thyself by every sense Of service which thou renderest."

Prayer—O God, who comest to us disguised in lowliness, to seek Thy dwelling with the humble, may false expectation not deceive us, nor pride shut Thee from our hearts. If Thou comest as Duty, Plain, drag and undesired, grant that we may not turn from Thy commands. Often the homely figure has called in vain, and only when it passed we saw its glory, glory as of the God begotten, Amen.

Is this your BIRTHDAY

FRIDAY, MARCH 12

If so, you are born with a good taste in everything.

You want the best in clothing, music, literature and other arts.

You will be looked upon, at times, as a snob because of your aristocratic strain, but when they know you better they will realize that you're not the snobbish type.

OL' TRUSTY

I'll have to admit that my lid looks like heck. So old that it's faded with wear. It's given real service till now it's a wreck, but anyway, whadda I care?

I toss it around 'cause I can't do it harm. I know that it's already spoiled. I tuck it right carelessly under my arm—this skypiece that's terribly soiled.

Whenever it rains I just laugh in its face. My feeling is, shucks, let'er pour. I grab up my trusty and slap it in place. That's what an old bonnet is for.

Prof. Obergosh Sakes has discovered that they don't charge for little kids on street cars, 'cause they're too small to reach the straps.

NOW HONESTLY—

I guess all of us, at some time or other, have been peeved at folks over the radio.

But that's to be expected. We never really grow up, and that feeling harks back to the days when we wanted all dessert and no ordinary dinner.

We forget that if it weren't for the mediocre songs, music and such, that come sailing through the loud speaker, we wouldn't really appreciate the better class.

And we also forget that radio entertainers can't be expected to bat a thousand all the time.

At least they are trying to entertain you. Give 'em a chance, and take the bad with the good.

Good Thoughts for Good People

Yes, all of you be subject one to another, and be clothed with humility; for God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble. Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time.

Peter.

Character is made up of small duties faithfully performed—of self-denial, of self-sacrifice, of kindly acts of love and duty. The reward of one duty is the power to fulfill another.

George Elliot.

No personal considerations should stand in the way of performing a public duty.

U. S. Grant.

Selfishness is the greatest curse of the human race.

Wm. E. Gladstone.

Whoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven.

Christ Jesus.

Exaltation is a good word and brings to men the thought of something very desirable. There are few who do not hope sometime to attain the state which it implies. Indeed, multitudes are struggling to reach its lofty heights. The greater part attempt the ascent in the belief that it may be gained through self-seeking while the truth is that no true exaltation can be won without absolute self-abnegation.

Man Who Gave Away Seven Millions Dies Still Rich

New York, Mar. 12—(AP)—Leopold Schepp, 8, who gave away millions in philanthropies and then appeared in vain to the world for advice on how to give away more for the betterment of humanity, is dead after a brief illness at his home on Central Park West. His philanthropies, many of them so quietly carried out that they are unrecorded, reached a total of $7,000,000, it is estimated. At the time of his death, he still was active head of his coconut importing firm.

New Income Tax Law Told in a Nutshell

Under the Revenue Act of 1926, thousands of persons are required to file returns of income although the incomes are not taxable. The act provides that returns shall be filed by every single person whose net income for 1925 was $1500 or more or whose gross income was $5000 or more, and by married couples living together, whose aggregate net income was $3500 or more, or whose aggregate gross income was $5000 or more. The exemptions are $1500 for single persons and $3500 for married persons living together, plus a $400 credit for each dependent. A person may have a gross income of $5000 and, by reason of the deductions for business expense, bad debts, losses, etc., a net income of less than $1500. A single person may have an exemption of $3500 as the head of a family. Nevertheless, returns are required in both instances.

Penalties are provided by the act for failure to file a return and pay at least one-fourth of the amount of tax due within the time prescribed, or before March 15, 1926.

Cudahy's Puritan Ham is distinguished for its finer flavor and delicious tenderness. It owes these qualities to the special Cudahy process of "ripening naturally." This method slowly and naturally diffuses the rich, natural meat juices without forcing or hurrying. The result is like tree-ripened fruit compared to artificial ripening. This superior process and the exacting care in selecting and curing Cudahy's Puritan, assures to you rich, tender, delicious ham with a finer flavor and makes parboiling unnecessary.

MAN IS CHARGED WITH PLOTTING TO POISON RIVAL

Woman in Case Says
She was Just "Kidding Him Along"

Los Angeles, Calif., Mar. 12.—(AP)—Elmer M. Archer, 37, is in jail today on charges of plotting to poison Mrs. Olive Bowers' husband, W. H. Bowers, 68, attorney and banker of Santa Fe, a suburb. Mrs. Bowers, 38, is under detention.

Police assert that Archer confessed to infatuation for Bowers' wife and to giving poison to Mrs. Bowers for the purpose of poisoning her husband. The police add that Mrs. Bowers said she never intended giving the poison to Bowers, destroying it soon after receiving it, and that she was "just kidding Archer along."

Two women are said to have overheard a conversation between Archer and Mrs. Bowers on a party telephone line and reported it to the pastor of a church where Bowers is a Sunday school teacher. The preacher told the police.

Archer is a clerk in the bank for which Bowers is attorney and director. Mrs. Bowers' brother, Judge W. H. Orr, of Carthage, Illinois, was notified and is reported on the way to Los Angeles.

SOME PAVEMENT IN STATE TO BE HELD UP BY QUARRELING

Disputes Over Rights-of-Way May Prevent Construction

R. P. Benedict of Springfield, first assistant chief engineer of the Illinois State Highway Department, in an address at Sterling Tuesday, predicted that considerable road work in the state will be held up this year because of disputes over rights-of-way.

"The building of highways in Illinois is quite a proposition," said Mr. Benedict. "You can't build them overnight, neither can you build a highway organization over night. In 1917 the $50,000,000 bond issue was brought up and was passed in 1918. No roads were built from 1919 to 1920, but since that time the state of Illinois has established a world's record in the building of roads. Illinois has outstripped every other state more than double. The year 1925 did not see the laying of as much hard surfaced road as in the preceding years and this year, 1926 will not be a record breaker, but it is hoped that 1927 will see the laying of a great many miles. The reason for the let down last year and this year is because of the fact that it is necessary to get all of the 'odds and ends' of the $50,000,000 bond issue cleared up before starting on the $100,000,000 bond issue program."

The speaker said that the automobile license was the source of revenue with which the roads are built, and that Illinois is one of four states that does not have a gasoline tax, and also one of four that have the lowest license charge. He spoke of the continued increase in the number of motor vehicles and said no one can predict when the saturation point will be reached. Last year Illinois had a seventeen per cent increase, which is about the average.

Fund Will Not Pay All Roads.
Mr. Benedict said that the department has been asked, and justly so, if the $100,000,000 bond issue would pave all the roads as outlined. He stated that, just as the $50,000,000 issue failed to provide roads for all those outlined, the same proposition would be true of the last bond issue. The speaker gave as the reason for this, the extra mileage which has been increased over the engineers' estimates. The mileage of the first issue was increased and another thing was the fact that the first program called for roads ten feet in width, but no sooner had the department started to build ten foot then it was found that they would not do at all. The width was increased to 16 feet and in some places 18 feet and eventually there will be four way roads built leading into the big centers. The three way road, on account of its dangers in the movement of traffic will never be considered.

Mr. Benedict told of the splendid research department conducted by the state highway department. He told of the various test roads and how the present arch slab type had finally been adopted. He spoke of the fairness in restricting trucks to 16,000 pounds on the rear axle and 24,000 for the entire road. He spoke of how the research department had been able to reduce the cost per mile, and how before any paving is accepted that the department has a thorough check on it. The state has its test engineer at the various material plants, another on the job and after the paving is finally laid, a core machine removes eight cores in every mile and these are tested to see that the contractor or inspector have not slipped anything over. Where the test of the cores is not up to the standard the contractor is deducted from his final settlement for his neglect in putting in enough cement or not pouring the concrete thick enough. The department has six hundred graduate engineers and no matter how big or well known the engineer who seeks a position in the department he must begin toward the bottom and work his way up. Every engineer in the department is capable of taking the next step above him if necessary.

Through this organization the cost of $24,000 to $27,000 per mile, while Pennsylvania pays around $44,000 per mile. Contractors formerly built four or five miles during the summer season and now they build around twenty or twenty-one miles. This decreases the cost of production.

Growth of Automobiles.
"Twenty-seven years ago there were three automobiles in this country and they were with Barnum & Bailey circus," said the speaker. "Think of the millions of cars in this country today, and the steady increase and the constant demand for more hard surfaced roads. Illinois has 96,000 miles of roads and with the completion of the $100,000,000 bond program, approximately 10 per cent of all roads in the state will have been paved. All important cities and every county seat will be connected with paved roads. Whether more roads will be demanded is problematical."

Think Compulsory Chapel Attendance is Injurious

New Haven, Conn., Mar. 12—(AP)—Believing that compulsion in this regard has injured rather than helped religious interests, a committee of the Yale College faculty, appointed to consider chapel service regulations, recommends that from the beginning of the next college year, students be not required to attend the Sunday service.

The report of the committee was submitted to the faculty and to the Yale corporation and the question was discussed by the faculty at a meeting today. The corporation will consider the matter at its meeting Saturday.

CONGRESS VOTES DRY, VOTES WET, BLEASE CHARGES

So. Carolina Senator Says Prohibition is Joke in Statement

Washington, Feb. 12—(AP)—Liquor is sold daily "under the very dome of the capitol" and Senator Blease, democrat, South Carolina, who makes this charge, is willing to prove it to any doubting Thomas by buying him a drink in the halls of congress. "Prohibition is a joke," he told the Washington Policemen's Association last night, adding that it would remain so until the men who voted for prohibition stop drinking liquor.

"The trouble with congress," he continued, "is that they vote dry and drink wet."

Bootleggers, he said, sell their ware "every day in the house and senate office building," and they come around to him daily and ask: "How much do you need today Senator?" To a newspaper man, who expressed incredulity, the senator later said: "If you don't think I mean what I say, come up to the capitol with me and I'll buy you a drink."

About the same time Senator Blease was addressing the policemen, Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel livering that organization's second at the Anti-Saloon League was detected in a few hours on the polls being taken by many newspapers on the subject of total prohibition as against beer and light wines. He told a radio audience that straw ballots "are as useless as a straw hat in a blizzard."

Watch Your Breakfast

Start every day with food that "stands by" you

HOW you feel all morning depends largely on what you eat for breakfast. Thousands have unenergetic forenoon because of wrong breakfast eating.

To feel right, you must have a well-balanced, complete breakfast ration. At most other meals—lunch and dinner—you get it. But breakfast is a hurried meal, often badly chosen.

Thus Quaker Oats, containing 16% protein, food's great tissue builder, 58% carbohydrate, its great energy element, plus all-important vitamins and the "bulk" that makes laxatives seldom needed, is the dietetic urge of the world today.

It is food that "stands by" you through the morning. Food that should start every breakfast in your home.

Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. That's faster than plain toast. Don't deny yourself the natural stimulation this rich food offers.

SYNOPSIS

Molly Shannon, State University student, has her first "real taste of life" when Stephen Renfro, a money expert, takes her to the theatre. Mrs. Parker, her kind-hearted landlady, supplied money with which to buy her a presentable dress. Molly is in the seventh heaven of rapture until Miss Brian, of the faculty, calls her in one day and warns her against "going out" with Renfro. It makes her "talked about," she says. But Renfro persists in his attentions and Molly accepts his proposal of marriage.

CHAPTER X—Continued

"I'm afraid, my dear, that's the maddish, small sort of person you've been allowing to interfere with your work and make you wretched and ill and thin as a little wraith."

"Does everybody know?"

"Well, it's a small world, this beehive of ours—things do get about." The older woman rose and pushed back her chair with a gesture of finality. "And now there's just one thing for you to do—make a clean, decisive cut and have it over with."

Molly rose, too. She was staring miserably straight in front of her.

"One thing more, Mrs. Parker is the kindest creature in the world, but she lets her impulsive, romantic old heart run away with her. You mustn't listen to her about this. Promise me you won't."

Molly promised and got out of the room—out of the building and under the open sky. She groped and stumbled her way to a familiar retreat in the woods beyond the campus and there hid the first hot unreasonableness of her anguish and shame. She threw herself face

"If it's Stephen," she said, "I don't want to see him."

down upon the indifferent cool earth. She lay there for hours, trembling and quivering from sheer torture, without even the bleak relief of tears. It seemed impossible she could ever go back—face those people who knew, who had talked about her and pitied her. If they had only let her alone.

CHAPTER XI

When she came back to town on the first day of August she was greeted by pretty much the same group of an August ago, with an addition or two—and the subtraction of Stephen. She was too numb and dispirited to take note of Mrs. Parker's mysterious, far-away expression while they were clearing up the dishes after supper. But when that game little woman came bustling up to her room an hour later and popped a shining, Santa Claus face in at the door, Molly understood.

"Guess who's downstairs . . . ?"

Santa Claus shrilled in a stage whisper, peering out excitedly from over the crooked old spectacles.

Molly looked at her for a moment in silence. Then, "If it's Stephen," she said, "I don't want to see him."

"That was hard enough. But Mrs. Parker's look of a crestfallen guardian angel who has just had her wing feathers plucked was worse. Molly turned abruptly and went over to the window. "Please," she finished without looking round. "If he comes again, don't tell me about it."

Mrs. Parker it was who finally handed her over to the enemy. Mrs. Parker, Stephen's sworn henchwoman. Face to face with Stephen on a shadowy evening campus—the perfidious little fairy godmother melting shamelessly into the middle distance—Molly knew that she was lost. Pride, resentment, everything was swept away, forgotten, in the heaven of reconciliation, which was like no reconciliation before. Stephen asked her to marry him. He admitted with his usual frank ingenueness that he hadn't meant to. He hadn't even wanted to. He thought he could get on without her. Since he couldn't—here his most whimsically appealing smile—what else was there to do?

Later he told her that he had an editorial position offered him in New York. He had been on a newspaper there once, and somebody had, oddly enough, kept track of him. He was going to take Molly with him.

Then he took Molly again in his arms and kissed her thoroughly, teasingly, as of old, even to the twin hollows in her neck and the spots behind her ears. She wondered a bit sardonically, though, even through her rapture, whether the offer of marriage wasn't a pretty steep price to pay for that privilege. At all events, at midnight they walked home hand in hand like happy children through the August darkness; she at least treading stars. And all night she was so drunk with joy she could not close her eyes to sleep. She did not want to sleep. She might lose a moment of something beautiful and precious, something that was hers now and might never be hers again.

There was one thing, Stephen added casually at the door before he said good night. It would be as well to say nothing to anybody yet. He had still some affairs to be settled, and it was no use taking the thing into one's confidence, anyhow.

One evening toward the end of August the group at Mrs. Parker's had planned an excursion to a Mexican bazaar downtown. When the hour agreed upon came and passed without Stephen's appearance, Molly, who knew well his magnificent indifference to promptness, insisted that the others should not wait. Mrs. Parker was reluctant about leaving her, but they all went off at last, waving good-bye to her on the front steps in the moonlight.

A clock striking inside the house started her rudely from this fearful yet intoxicating reverie. Ten o'clock! Stephen was late. She moved down the steps, gazed out toward the street, listened intently for an unburied footfall—a mere trifle of being an hour or so behind time would never discompose Stephen. Presently she walked to the gate, looked up and down the street, listened again. The night had grown to her straining ears preternaturally still; it seemed to be listening with her.

When the clock struck eleven and still he had not come, she forgot her own foolish timidity in a panic of fear for Stephen. Something had happened. Perhaps he was ill and with no one to look after him; or hurt—lying helpless and in pain. She mounted the steps, threw open the screen door, and walked without a tremor into the blackness which filled every crack and crevice of the deserted house like a palpable fifth element. She felt her way to the back hall, switched on the light, and opened the telephone book.

She had never called Stephen's number before and there was some difficulty about finding it—her fingers trembled so. . . . For a long time she could get no answer. She alternately pleaded with a cross and sleepy central, and shook frantically at the hook. After several small eternities a man's voice, resentful and husky with sleep, materialized at the other end of the wire.

"Mr.—who? . . . Who do you say? . . . No, I can't hear you—shake up your hook. Oh, Renfro! No, he's not here." Unmistakable symptoms of hanging up. Then Molly's faint but insistent, "Do you know—where he is?"

"No." Stronger symptoms of hanging up.

"One minute—please. . . ." With every syllable her voice grew fainter and more chill. "It's—very important. Can't you tell me—at least—when he went out?"

There was perceptible hesitation, then the man snapped out with uncivil finality: "He packed his grip, paid his rent, and left town on the noon train. That's all I know. Good-bye."

"Please—please. . . ." Molly entreated desperately. "He didn't leave—any word?"

"No, no word. Good-bye!"

Perhaps Stephen was in some dreadful trouble that he dared not even tell her about. Perhaps he needed her at this moment as he would never need her again. It was cruel of him, though, not to let her help him—to shut her out in this darkness and cold and unspeakable terror. Or perhaps—But reason paused before that other vague and as yet mercifully nameless possibility. Some things the mind cannot accept all at once. They must be come at by degrees—a drop of anguish at a time—or they unbalance, destroy.

She turned out the light and groped her way stumblingly up the ink-black stairs to her room. Here in the darkness she undressed and crept shivering, despite the night's torrid heat, into bed. A little later she heard voices below, and directly Mrs. Parker came into the house and straight up the stairs toward her room. Alarm sounded in her footsteps.

"Mary," he continued impetuously, "I can give you all that and more."

"It is so masculine and Mr. Lowell used to be so fond of them—but please sit down. Shall I tell Mary about that?"

"I did it rather pleasantly waiting," he flashed her a smile. "You are comfortable here, aren't you?" He glanced around the living room.

Mrs. Lowell sighed. "We try to like it, but it is rather trying, this apartment life, after so many years in a big home. Oh well, things of course have been different since Mr. Lowell died. It almost breaks my heart to see Mary work, but she seems to like it. I'm afraid I'll never get used to it." There was a suspicion of tears in her voice.

Church smiled. "The modern girl, Mrs. Lowell. And I'm not sure that I agree with all her theories. I rather cling to the old-fashioned idea of woman's place being in the home and that sort of thing. This striving for equality and economic independence is all very well, but after all there are certain inevitable contacts the girl in business has to make that are not—well, I don't like to see it."

"And now, Mrs. Lowell, I'm taking the liberty of saying something that has been on my mind for some time. It is about Mary."

"Yes?" Mrs. Lowell was all eager attention.

"I love her. I want to marry her. Now just a minute, please. May I finish?" He waved away her interruption. "I can offer her and you, too—a wonderful home. While I am not exactly a millionaire, still most people would call me wealthy."

"Yes, of course," breathed Mrs. Lowell, "very wealthy."

"And," he went on smoothly, "I think I can hold a certain position in the community that cannot be bought with money."

He was on his feet, gesturing gracefully with his arms to add emphasis to his words. "Mrs. Lowell, all Mary has to do is say the word."

"Have you said anything to Mary?" Mrs. Lowell's voice fluttered.

"That is another thing I am old fashioned about," Mrs. Lowell. He bowed slightly. "I am speaking first to you. I have dropped an occasional hint, which is only natural for a man in love. I had gathered that she was somewhat interested in a young man named—let me see—Rand."

"Oh, that?" She smiled deprecatingly.

Mrs. Lowell, in Mary's room, said as she helped her daughter into her coat. "Mr. Church asked my permission tonight to propose to you."

"Mother!" Mrs. Lowell went on, unheeding. "That's such a rare and admirable trait to find in a man today. Not very many of them think of us mothers."

"Mother, don't talk like that. Did he say—"

"He has wealth," Mrs. Lowell interrupted. "refinement, position—everything a girl could ask. Not ingly. "I did my best to discourage that. They met in a rather romantic way and he was hers a few times, but that was all. She never mentions his name any more."

"These wise mothers!" he exclaimed softly. "It must have been—let us call it intuition—that led you to discourage that. I haven't had the opportunity to observe the young man very much, but the first time I saw him he was standing on the street with a notorious woman in his arms. Right in front of the Mayfair Hotel, with dozens of people passing."

"Brazen!" Mrs. Lowell exclaimed. "Oh, both of them must have been drunk. There's no other way of accounting for it. Mary saw it, too. Perhaps that's why she hasn't mentioned his name since."

"Mary hasn't been quite herself lately," she admitted. "I wonder if she's been thinking about that—that Rand."

"A little talk with her," he suggested. "She shall have it."

"Without, of course, bringing me into it. Things might be misunderstood, you know, and I have a certain delicacy about suggesting—"

"I understand perfectly," Mr. Church. "I think it quite noble of you to let me know."

"It was quite distasteful, I assure you, Mrs. Lowell."

"I know, I know. But there's Mary calling. Some last minute help with her dress, I suppose. Excuse me."

Alone, Church smiled a self-satisfied smile. With his left hand he carefully flicked his cigar ashes into a nearby receiver. With his right he smoothed down his flawlessly combed hair. He walked over to the wall mirror and adjusted his black bow tie. Then he sat down and waited.

Mrs. Lowell, in Mary's room, said as she helped her daughter into her coat. "Mr. Church asked my permission tonight to propose to you."

"Mother!" Mrs. Lowell went on, unheeding. "That's such a rare and admirable trait to find in a man today. Not very many of them think of us mothers."
